A Hero Lies in You

Unit Plan Rationale:

The following unit is a compilation of a variety of tools, strategies, activities, and theories that I have found meaningful in the past two years of working with students. I wanted to create a multi-faceted classroom that caters to individualized freedom in writing, thinking, and creating. It is an interactive glimpse into the knowledge that students are capable of gaining via planning and clarifying the needs of students in the classroom.

This unit is made for a ninth grade classroom of roughly about twenty-five students. The students have completed lessons and activities which pertained to Greek Mythology, the essence of poetry: both reading and writing, as well as finishing Shakespeare’s Romeo and Juliet. Select students have shown need for grammar and syntax direction, and all of the students could use an initial, or for some a refreshing look at the writing process. This unit implements a large amount of writing and technology in the form of YouTube videos, music, Moviemaker, and two activities involving social networking.

Music plays a role in the daily lives of most adolescent children. Therefore, the theme of my lesson, “A Hero Lies in You,” was picked delicately. At this point in many students’ lives they are discovering who they want to become as adults, issues of peer pressure, and developing voices of their own. “A Hero Lies in You,” not only caters to the creativity of superheroes and Disney characters, but also takes a reflective approach to looking within ourselves to discover how we too can become an everyday hero.

After finishing such a dramatic novel that is Shakespeare’s Romeo and Juliet in a previous unit, the students were in need of literature that may directly depict issues they face in their own lives. Sharon Draper’s The Battle of Jericho, allows for themes such as death, struggles in friendship, peer pressure, and internal battles to surface. As stated in the text Adolescent

_Literacy_, “the books we offer this new generation should also reflect this paradigm shift in how adolescents negotiate their interaction with one another, their way through school and life, and in their reading.” (Beers, Probst, & Rief, 2007). Students should be able to respond to the literature in the classroom with sincere reflections and initiate conversations with their own thinking. Using this particular Young Adult Novel (YAL) opens doors to introspective reading while promoting discussions enriched with student debate, which goes hand-in-hand with _differentiated learning_.

Many students could potentially breeze through their years in secondary education without receiving direct instruction that caters to multi-genre writing. Writing for multiple purposes or audiences is extremely vital for critical thinking skills and even lends itself to the social etiquettes of language. Throughout this unit we will take a deeper look into reflective writing through journals and reader’s response approaches, play with the impact of poetry, and create tangible examples of the application process in the form of resume writing. I incorporated many examples of poetry because, “poetry is _honest_ writing,” (Kirby, Kirby, & Liner, 2004). As the author’s of this book _Inside Out_ states, “poetry is real writing, not just writing for the teacher.” Although I have included directions and rubrics, which will provide structure for the students’ writing, it is important to incorporate writing for completion rather than placing a strong emphasis on following the rules.

If writing is involved, so shall the _processes of writing_. The teacher will model the writing behaviors for his or her class because if the students are writing, so should the teacher. Students will be able to receive feedback from their peers, self-evaluate their work, and discuss progress with the instructor during their student-teacher conference. “The goal of revision is for the writer to convey what is in his or her heart to the reader,” (Heard, 2003). The unit allows for students to draft and revisit their writing in order to reflect on their errors or need for editing. The students will complete multiple drafts of both the Hero poem and the Hero resume. Students will in turn complete a portfolio, which will contain all of their polished drafts of their writing. “The purpose of this portfolio is to see the student writing at work,” (Kirby, Kirby, & Liner, 2004). The final step of the writing process, known as publication, will play an apparent role in this unit. Students will invite their family, friends, and heroes to the final Hero Project Party, where each student’s Advocacy Video will be shown. The purpose of publication is for students to visualize the importance of writing and that their hard work does not go unnoticed. GW editing publishing

This unit is doused in interactive activities that will allow for multiple outlets of student expression. Student originality will become prevalent both on the page and in the positive learning environment that building a classroom community creates.
A Hero Lies in You

Classroom Goals:
✓ To conceptualize the idea of hero.
✓ To gain a deeper understanding of what it means to be a hero.
✓ To write for many different genres or audiences.
✓ To create a culminating portfolio.
✓ To create an advocacy video pertaining to a particular theme.

Overall Objectives:
Students will be able to…
• Conceptualize the idea of multiple kinds of heroes.
• Write for a particular genre.
• Differentiate the meanings of homonyms and homophones.
• Make predictions about the text
• Discuss themes and characters found in The Battle of Jericho.
• Write a persuasive paragraph using textual knowledge.
• Connect the text to self.
• Analyze the relevance of the title of the book.
• Write a poem using themes from the book and the artwork.
• Defend their heroes.
• Reproduce similar mug shots as the ones presented in class.
• Define difficult textual vocabulary
• Discuss the text through the Say Something Strategy. – Kylene Beers.
• Practice using the dash and hyphen in their writing.
• Apply the rules of grammar to their writing.
• Recognize the influence of Greek roots in language.
• Distinguish the effects of writing for many purposes
• Compare social networking sites.
• Discuss the pros and cons of social networking sites.
• Create a facebook page using knowledge of heroes and villains
• Write to a particular audience.
• Publish their poems in the form of a t-shirt.
• Write about their thinking while reading.
• Compare and contrast two texts.
• Adapt to new writing formats
• Categorize elements to create a video
• Incorporate technology into their writing
• Discuss individualized progress with the teacher.
• Relate children’s texts to YAL.
• Arrange assessments for their portfolio.
• Polish assignments for their portfolio.
• Appreciate their hard work in the form of a portfolio.
• Praise their peers’ work as students present.
• Praise their real life heroes.
• Support their peers during their movie presentations.

Homophones/Homonyms

Copy of a lesson from Linguistics Fall 2009

Annie Lockman, Kaitlyn Akos, Katie Baker

Purpose: The purpose of this lesson is to provide students with a firm grasp of commonly misused words. There have been recurring misuses of homophones found in students’ writing. Therefore, this lesson is to define the misconceptions and clarify meaning of these often used out of context words.

Standards

LA.6.3.4.4: The student will edit for correct use of the eight parts of speech (noun, pronoun, verb, adverb, adjective, conjunction, preposition, interjection)

Objectives

Students will be able to...
- Demonstrate an understanding of homophones.
- Illustrate the meaning homophones in groups.

Materials:

- YouTube video clip
- Index cards (for group activity)
- Paper for illustrations
- Words for the board (for class activity)
- Prepared sentences on the board
- Homophone definitions
- Examples of misused of homophones from popular culture.

Resources

See Works Cited (Attached)

Anticipatory Set: After noticing some of the students struggle with homophone usage in their writing it is necessary to present the class with a lesson concerning homophones. The lesson will begin with a YouTube video of using homophones presented by Veggie Tales.

Teacher Procedures

<tr>
<td>2 minutes</td>
<td>The teacher will show a short video about “Homophones” to get the students engaged.</td>
<td>The students will be actively engaged in the video, getting a peek at “Homophones.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 minutes</td>
<td>The teacher will explain to the class what homophones are and how they are commonly misused.</td>
<td>The students will be engaged in the lesson and they will be taking notes.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 minutes</td>
<td>The teacher will pass out index card to each student with a homophone on it, and students will find another student with a homophone or homonym match.</td>
<td>The students will get into pairs with their homophone match.</td>

<td>Groups of students will share their drawings and explanations with the class as well as finish a sentence on the board.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 minute</td>
<td>The teacher will instruct students to get into groups of four.</td>
<td>The students will form their pairs into groups of four.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 minutes</td>
<td>The teacher will pass out an example of homophone misusage to each group of students and they will then correct each grammar misusage.</td>
<td>Correct each grammar misusage in the handout given by the teacher.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 minutes</td>
<td>The teacher will ask for a few volunteers to explain their corrections.</td>
<td>Groups of students will share their homophone misusage and explain any corrections they have made.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>*5 minutes</td>
<td>The teacher will pass out homework assignment for follow up of the lesson. Wrap up any last minute discussion of homophones.</td>
<td>Students will ask questions if there is any misunderstandings or need for clarification.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Time permitting

Closure: This lesson will end with the explanations of corrected popular culture signs. If students have any particular questions about homophones or grammar in general the teacher will answer anything that needs to be clarified.

Assessment: Throughout the lesson there will be many opportunities for informal assessment. Questioning the lesson, filling in the blanks of the sentences, and correcting the misused homophones will suffice as both informal and formal assessments. Students will need to complete the homework assignment as a formal assessment of understanding.

Evaluation: The teacher will be able to continually assess the students’ understanding both informally and formally. Students will be engaged by working in pairs, small groups, sharing their corrections, and independently through homework.

Homework: See attached handout for homework assignment.
A Hero Lies in You

Accommodations: If students are having trouble understanding the difference between pairs of words or what is being asked of them they can work in small groups rather than pairs. The teacher can informally assess the students understanding through questions and participation. If students continue to struggle use the fill-in-the blank sentences for a different lesson. This lesson could be expanded for a longer class period by having each group share their pictures, descriptions, and corrections.

Lesson Plan from TSL4331
Pfeifer, Lockman, and Akos

Purpose: We have noticed our ELL students are having some trouble with common sixth grade mathematical terminology. The students not only struggle pronouncing some of the words, but they find it difficult to relate the words to their given meanings. Ms. Valle, our cooperating teacher, presented us with the idea of creating a lesson on mathematical vocabulary. This lesson is interactive and will allow for the students to build a more dimensional relationship with the language.

Sunshine State Standards:

- LA.6.1.6.4: The student will categorize key vocabulary and identify salient features.
- LA.7.1.6.1: The student will use new vocabulary that is introduced and taught directly.
- LA.7.1.6.5: The students will relate new vocabulary to familiar words.

Objectives: Students will be able to…

- Relate math terms to their corresponding definitions.
- Explain how their picture or example relates to the definition.

Materials:

- Math terms and definitions
- Paper
- Markers

Teaching Strategies:

<tr>
<td>3 Minutes</td>
<td>Group students into pairs. Pass out paper, markers, dictionaries, math books, etc. Give each pair one of the difficult words from the board.</td>
<td>Get into pairs. Get out math books or workbooks.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 Minute</td>
<td>Instruct each group to fold the paper into four squares. (Hamburger style/then Hotdog).</td>
<td>Fold paper into four squares. Write their names on the back.</td>

<td>In the bottom right-hand corner instruct students to write any questions they have about this particular math word.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 Minutes</td>
<td>Ask if any volunteers would like to present their words to the class. Hang up words around the classroom.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Closure: Students will be able to discuss with their peers and the teachers about words they do not understand. If students need more examples we will further this lesson during our next class meeting.

Attachments:
- Math terms and definitions
- Example of 4 square activity

Homework: Students will finish their homework from other classes.

Accommodations: Because this class is full of many students from a variety of backgrounds dictionaries and a thesaurus will be available for all students in need. If they need additional help they will be able to take home their activity, or work on it during the next class meeting.

Roaf was not bloopy.
His bork was flarfing.
Blix saw Roaf.
Why the glork glafe?
“My bork is flarfing,” he said.
Blix was bloopy until he gliffed for his bork.
Then he saw Greep morking down the rife with his book.
Trife that bork back at me, you lafe!
Greep morked even lafer.
“When I tarck you, you will be sholly, Greep!”
Greep morked until he could not mork any longer.
“Tafe your floofy bork,” Greep said.

Directions for Facebook Page

Adapted from an activity from Teaching English in Middle School by Ramona Pittman.

On the provided paper create a mock Facebook page for your group’s hero. Your Facebook page should include:

- Hero’s name
- Picture
- Birthday
- Relationship status
- Status update (2)
- 4 Wall posts from friends (fellow heroes)
- 3 Groups
- 1 Fan page
- Interests
- Favorite books
- Favorite music
